

Manuel Santapau

Seduced by new music, Manuel Santapau has given himself a mark that is out of the ordinary in the musical world. In addition to having been awarded in several national and international competitions and having obtained the highest marks at the Conservatorio Superior de Murcia, and later at the Conservatorio de Valencia, he is a member of the Orquesta Simfònica de Castellón as a soloist. He began his cello studies in the Banda primitiva de Lliria under the tutelage of M^a José Santapau. Later, his interest and open mind took him from the classical world, which will always be present and from which he was lucky enough to receive classes and advice for several years from Maestro Marçal Cervera, to the contemporary world, being a collaborator of ensembles such as the Grup Instrumental de Valencia or the Ensemble d'Arts and a founding member of the Ensemble Espai Sonor. Thanks to this, he developed his knowledge and research into current forms of expression and participated in important international festivals such as Música Nova (Sao Paulo, Brazil), SMASH Festival (Salamanca, Spain), ENSEMS (Valencia, Spain), Opus Festival (Bordeaux, France), Mostra Sonora (Valencia, Spain), Ciclo Espirales (Paris, France) or the Ciclo Klang (Helsinki, Finland). His encounters with José Manuel López López, Voro García, Luís de Pablo, Héctor Parra, Alberto Posadas, Aureliano Cattaneo, Elena Mendoza or Georg Friedrich Haas, had a profound impact on his development. His teaching activities are carried out in such diverse environments as the Conservatorio Superior de Castellón, the Conservatorio Profesional de Carcaixent (Valencia), the Campus CellosMagics and the different courses and workshops where he is invited to give master classes every year. He is currently a cello teacher at the “Óscar Esplá” Conservatory in Alicante. Manuel Santapau has recorded several albums with the Ensemble Espai Sonor for the Stradivarius record label.

Seduced by new music, Manuel Santapau has given himself a mark that is out of the ordinary in the musical world. In addition to having been awarded in several national and international competitions and having obtained the highest marks at the Conservatorio Superior de Murcia, and later at the Conservatorio de Valencia, he is a member of the Orquesta Simfònica de Castellón as a soloist. He began his cello studies in the Banda primitiva de Lliria under the tutelage of M^a José Santapau. Later, his interest and open mind took him from the classical world, which will always be present and from which he was lucky enough to receive classes and advice for several years from Maestro Marçal Cervera, to the contemporary world, being a collaborator of ensembles such as the Grup Instrumental de Valencia or the Ensemble d'Arts and a founding member of the Ensemble Espai Sonor. Thanks to this, he developed his knowledge and research into current forms of expression and participated in important international festivals such as Música Nova (Sao Paulo, Brazil), SMASH Festival (Salamanca, Spain), ENSEMS (Valencia, Spain), Opus Festival (Bordeaux, France), Mostra Sonora (Valencia, Spain), Ciclo Espirales (Paris, France) or the Ciclo Klang (Helsinki, Finland). His encounters with José Manuel López López, Voro García, Luís de Pablo, Héctor Parra, Alberto Posadas, Aureliano Cattaneo, Elena Mendoza or Georg Friedrich Haas, had a profound impact on his development. His teaching activities are carried out in such diverse environments as the Conservatorio Superior de Castellón, the Conservatorio Profesional de Carcaixent (Valencia), the Campus CellosMagics and the different courses and workshops where he is invited to give master classes every year. He is currently a cello teacher at the “Óscar Esplá” Conservatory in Alicante. Manuel Santapau has recorded several albums with the Ensemble Espai Sonor for the Stradivarius record label.

Seduced by new music, Manuel Santapau has given himself a mark that is out of the ordinary in the musical world. In addition to having been awarded in several national and international competitions and having obtained the highest marks at the Conservatorio Superior de Murcia, and later at the Conservatorio de Valencia, he is a member of the Orquesta Simfònica de Castellón as a soloist. He began his cello studies in the Banda primitiva de Lliria under the tutelage of M^a José Santapau. Later, his interest and open mind took him from the classical world, which will always be present and from which he was lucky enough to receive classes and advice for several years from Maestro Marçal Cervera, to the contemporary world, being a collaborator of ensembles such as the Grup Instrumental de Valencia or the Ensemble d'Arts and a founding member of the Ensemble Espai Sonor. Thanks to this, he developed his knowledge and research into current forms of expression and participated in important international festivals such as Música Nova (Sao Paulo, Brazil), SMASH Festival (Salamanca, Spain), ENSEMS (Valencia, Spain), Opus Festival (Bordeaux, France), Mostra Sonora (Valencia, Spain), Ciclo Espirales (Paris, France) or the Ciclo Klang (Helsinki, Finland). His encounters with José Manuel López López, Voro García, Luís de Pablo, Héctor Parra, Alberto Posadas, Aureliano Cattaneo, Elena Mendoza or Georg Friedrich Haas, had a profound impact on his development. His teaching activities are carried out in such diverse environments as the Conservatorio Superior de Castellón, the Conservatorio Profesional de Carcaixent (Valencia), the Campus CellosMagics and the different courses and workshops where he is invited to give master classes every year. He is currently a cello teacher at the “Óscar Esplá” Conservatory in Alicante. Manuel Santapau has recorded several albums with the Ensemble Espai Sonor for the Stradivarius record label.